Fraternity & Sorority Life Impact Survey

OVERALL RESULTS REPORT

TCU's fraternity and sorority community represents more than 48% percent of the undergraduate student population, over 4,700 students, throughout five diverse councils: the Interfraternity Council (IFC), the Independent Greek Council (IGC), the Multicultural Greek Council (MGC), the National Pan-Hellenic Council (NPHC) and the Panhellenic Council. At TCU, the goal of membership is to complement the student's academic experience by providing personal and professional development. It is the university's hope that fraternities and sororities are building better men and women through the establishment of intergenerational relationships, the adoption of shared values, and the development of the skills needed to become leaders in a global community. It is also the hoped that fraternities and sororities provide a sense of community for members and enrich the overall campus culture.

In an effort to enhance goal attainment and ensure transparency and accountability, the Division of Student Affairs conducts a campuswide assessment of the impact of fraternities and sororities on the campus community every three years. The Office of Student Life Analytics conducted this year's study during 2022 spring semester. The assessment involves all undergraduate students, regardless of affiliation status.

The CampusLabs survey platform was used to distribute the survey, collect responses, and analyze results. The initial survey invitation was sent to 3,214 undergraduate students. Four reminder emails were sent every four days after the initial invitation. A total of 512 students responded to the survey for a 15.93% response rate. Of the 512 that responded, 400 completed the survey for a 78.13% completion rate. These results yield a 3.1% margin of error at the 95% confidence level.

The results presented on the following pages include an overall representation of the student responses regardless of affiliation status. Reports based on affiliation status are under separate cover.

1	1.35%	I am a first-gen latina, thus joining a sorority was something completely out of comfort zone and unlike anything anyone else in my family has engaged in before.
1	1.35%	I did not like some of the guys in the fraternity and PC, but this was outweighed by the ones I did like
1	1.35%	I didn't know a lot about it, how much time/money it would require.
1	1.35%	I didn't know if I would belong, or it would be a group of inauthentic friendships that were just for show.
1	1.35%	I didn't know what a sorority was until I got to college.
1	1.35%	I didn't going into the the process, but as the process went on I felt more unsure especially as the process was emotionally hard
1	1.35%	I didn't really know what all we did??? and I only met a couple people in the sorority before I joined so I wasn't positive I would make friends. Also very expensive
1	1.35%	I didn't want the hierarchy culture to impact how I was viewed by others.
1	1.35%	I felt scared about the time commitment (given all the requirements), dues, and just had general anxiousness about the possibility that recruitment was just a honeymoon phase.
1	1.35%	I got cut from my first option and didn't want anything else

	Q24. Did you have any reservations about joining a fraternity/sorority?
Count	Percent
1	1.35%	I have a relative who joined a latin sorority and had a bad experience, which made me hesitant to join one.
1	1.35%	I have heard rumors that sometimes sororities can seem like cliques, however I have not witnessed this on a large scale.
1	1.35%	I thought I wouldn't be able to afford it.
1	1.35%	I wanted to go the same sorority as my mom. People branded the sororities I got back as "bad"
1	1.35%	I was a bit skeptical about the initiation ceremony
1	1.35%	I was afraid I wouldn't completely fit in
1	1.35%	I was afraid of hazing and the time commitment and thought I wouldn't be a good fit.
1	1.35%	I was mostly concerned about schedule conflicts due to my prior dedication of clinical work within my major.
1	1.35%	I was nervous about going through rush and having to be cut from soroities. It all worked out though!
1	1.35%	I was nervous about the amount of girls involved since girls can be mean. I was right.
1	1.35%	I was nervous that I didnt look the part.
1	1.35%	I was nervous that I would pick the wrong sorority or that the girls would be clicky and mean
1	1.35%	I was nervous that I wouldn't fit in.
1	1.35%	I was nervous to join a sorority before I had even started classes and was originally planning to wait until sophomore year so that I can be more comfortable with college life and meet people outside of just my sorority.
1	1.35%	I was not very familiar with them so it was very outside of my comfort zone.
1	1.35%	I was scared that the sorority I joined wouldn't share the same morals or values as me, but I was wrong!
1	1.35%	I was worried about being boxed into a specific personality type -- concerned others would assume what I am like because of my Greek affiliation
1	1.35%	I was worried about fitting into sorority life because I am a more reserved individual but I wanted to make friends and with Greek life being so big at TCU I felt that I should be in one
1	1.35%	I was worried about the social culture
1	1.35%	I was worried that I eventually would grow to dislike the internal culture or formation of cliques.
1	1.35%	It is very expensive and as a rising senior I don't know if I'll be able to continue being a member due to cost
1	1.35%	It was a lot of work to be in a professional fraternity and I Wass worried it would be too much.
1	1.35%	its expensive
1	1.35%	Just not too sure what to expect
1	1.35%	Monetary
1	1.35%	Monetary concerns made me think about my choices, however the multicultural sorority is not as expensive as other councils
1	1.35%	money
1	1.35%	Money and time of pledging
1	1.35%	Money, stereotypes
1	1.35%	My mother wasn't thrilled
1	1.35%	not everyone is well accepted especially if you are a part of a different societal group.
1	1.35%	Not wanting to feel overwhelmed
1	1.35%	Personally didn't like the whole atmosphere of those organizations and wanted to try to establish my own route in college
1	1.35%	Racist? Or how accepting they were going to be? Dues?
1	1.35%	Recruitment during Fall 2020. Online recruitment was somewhat confusing and I was consequently worried that my choice wouldn't be the best fit for me.
1	1.35%	Since I didn't know anyone at TCU I was scared I wouldn't get the one I wanted.
1	1.35%	Social perceptions, risks involved, girl drama, etc.
1	1.35%	sometimes sorority girls have this stigma around them of being "mean girls" or "stuck up" â€ It made me a little nervous going into it, but my Rho Gam definitely helped, and entering all the houses (some more than others) and talking with the sorority recruitment girls relieved it too.
1	1.35%	The one I received a bid from was not my favorite one, and I never thought I would want to join a sorority until last minute.
1	1.35%	The reputation of not being pretty or something

			Q24. Did you have any reservations about joining a fraternity/sorority?
Count		Percent
	1	1.35%	The stereotypes.
	1	1.35%	the stigma is not something I particularly wanted to be associated with
	1	1.35%	There are stereotypes associated with Greek like in general, but this schools culture around specific sororities is also very toxic. If you are not in the "good" sororities, men & women alike will label you & make you feel like an outsider when you are all part of the same thing just different letters
	1	1.35%	There is a lot of racist/negative history surrounding fraternity/sorority life, and I worried that I was perpetuating something negative as I became a member. I also felt that being a part of a sorority here at TCU did not make as large of an impact on my time here than I thought.
	1	1.35%	They have a nation-wide reputation of being bigoted and subjective
	1	1.35%	worried i wouldnt have enough time

Before joining a sorority I was scared about finding something I loved to be involved with and now I found a place that makes me feel like I belong. I also love my philanthropy for my sorority: Its Cook's Children's Hospital. I love volunteering for these kids its so important to let them know people love them and are praying on their recovery. I also find it so cool that this is the philanthropy because my brother was in a hospital at 8 weeks old and stayed there for awhile. It was nice to see how much the hospital helps and other organizations that did things that made his day. like bringing him a teddy bear. At that age little things make such a big difference. I am happy he is all better today and I love being able to give back to the hospitals that saved him.
	1	0.64%	I know how to network with people my own age, through leadership opportunities I have gained experiences that I can put on my resume
	1	0.64%	I was the Secretary last year and currently serve as the Internal Vice President which means I am in charge of Philanthropy, Brotherhood, Alumni Relations, and chapter PR. This has helped me develop major time management skills as I continue to work in classes, as well as delegation to my chairs I appointed for each sector. I also have been able to synthesize ideas from a wide variety of people I work with in these sectors as well.
	1	0.64%	I've been able to assume leadership positions and gain experience working in groups of people and putting on fun events.
	1	0.64%	I've been able to communicate better

	1	0.64%	Improved my social and communication skills.
	1	0.64%	In my position, I was in charge of filling my sorority house. I had to get very creative with personal and intimate events for first year students to feel welcome in the house and to want to apply. Once the house was filled, I had to get creative with pairing girls as roommates and organize meetings for girls to get to know one another and choose their preference of roommates. I also had a hard deadline to meet with FSL, which really challenged my time management skills. Also, at the end of my term, I was required to pull girls to live in the house for the second semester of the school year. As a people pleaser, it was hard to tell people information that they didn't want to hear. Typically, I am either really kind and patient, or I blow up all that I've bottled up. In this process, however, it challenged me to be assertive yet still kind and patient. I found that balance, made the girls' feelings feel validated, and made sure that they knew if was because of bylaws, not my choice. Now, both of those girls are happily living in the house. Had I blown up my emotions, there's a strong chance neither of those girls would still be in the sorority. Lastly, I did not get along with a lot of my executive board the second half of my term, which was hard because at first I considered them to be my best friends. This challenged me to remain cordial in a business setting, and not let my emotions get in the way of serving our whole organization.
